About Gabriel: My name is Gabriel V. Estrada, a chemical engineering major at the University of Houston. I became a Tutor because I enjoy education and sharing my passion for math, chemistry, and physics. Helping others understand these subjects so they can continue their academic paths gives me happiness and purpose. I plan to go into automation and become a consultant.

Pathway: STEM

Courses: Math (College Algebra — Calculus III), University Physics I, and General & Organic Chemistry.

About Giselle: My name is Giselle Vargas, I major in Process Technology and I'm hoping to become a refinery operator after graduating. I became a Tutor because I get to connect with my peers on an academic level. Though the field is competitive, it gives us a chance to network and share information about the field while also working towards the same goal. Some advice I would give to Lee College students is to be confident in their knowledge and to persevere the best they can!

Pathway: Manufacturing & Industrial

Courses: All Process Technology courses

About Rachel: My name is Rachel Roche, an engineering student and SI Coach for physics and chemistry. I also tutor math and general chemistry. I love being an SI Coach because helping others succeed in their classes and dreams is rewarding. SI sessions not only expand student understanding but also deepen my own, making learning a shared experience.

Pathway: STEM

Courses: Math (College Algebra — Calculus II), Biology, Chemistry, Environmental Science I, and BCIS.

About Avery: My name is Avery Herrera, a Management Information Systems major. I became a Tutor because I know what it's like to struggle with these courses, and I want to help students succeed. I aim to build confidence, encourage growth, and remind students that the effort they put in now shapes their future.

Pathway: Health Services

Courses: Anatomy & Physiology, Microbiology, HESI Exam Prep, TEAS Exam Prep.
